ALLIED INVASION of Normandy began when U. S. forces landed near Isigny and the Vire River mouth, while British-Canadian troops shored near Bernieres and the Orne River mouth. Within a week the Allied forces had united their beachheads and began pushing inland from the Orne to St. Mare on the Cherbourg Peninsula.

THE CHERBOURG Peninsula had been cleared almost to its base. The Yanks had driven down from the Carentan area just beyond Le Haye and were heading for the St. Lo breakthrough. The British were meeting tough opposition at Caen and to the southwest the widest beachhead expansion was near Villers-Bocage.

THRUSTS toward key Brittany seaports, such as Brest, St. Malo and St. Nazaire were on and the crucial breakthrough at St. Lo opened the way for the Yank push southward toward the Loire River and Nantes as well as to the East. AUGUST was a month of monumental achievement. Southern France had been invaded and Paris had fallen. With the capture of Mediterranean ports the Yanks pushed up the Rhone Valley to central France. The eastward thrust toward the westwall had Nancy as its southern tip. The line then went through Belgium.

CLEARING of Antwerp as a vital new Allied supply route focused attention on the bloody battle of Walcheren and the islands of the Western Netherlands. Along the great front Allied preparations gained in tempo and tension mounted as the time for the big Winter push neared. Bad weather made fighting tougher.

Six Months After Invasion

FROM Arnhem to the Belfort Gap, the Western front has been blazing and the toughest and bloodiest battles have been raging. That the Germans would make their most desperate defense stand on a line beginning just south of Aachen, which had been levelled by Allied bombs and artillery appeared certain. For strategists have long considered the Cologne Plain the natural corridor for invasion, and the march to Berlin. Here, too, is the Reich, heart of industrial Germany. The Saar coal basin has also been a vital Allied objective. Following the breakthrough of the French 1st Army at Belfort Gap, the Saar battle gained in momentum. Meanwhile, Gen. Eisenhower has predicted that the Germans must, strategically make their last stand west of the Rhine.

It was some kind of a reunion at police headquarters, when Sheriff J. E. Hodson of Clinton County, Policeman Don Simmons of the Wilmington police force, and another resident of Wilmington, all showed up at headquarters about the same time. Each carried a citation issued for not paying the parking meters.

The three took the matter good naturedly and of course were pleased to know that no dollar is yet being collected for violations. "And just think," said Policeman Simmons, "I've passed out thousands of these tickets, and then get one myself."

First of the out-of-state Christmas trees are beginning to reach dealers here.

These trees, running from three to six feet or more in height, are grown in Canada. They were brought here by truck. Apparently they had been shipped by rail to some central point from which they are being distributed.

The trees, spruce and hemlock, all bear a label showing they were grown in Canada.

It is a little early for the trees, but the demand for them seems to be good even at this early date.

Lt. William C. Miller learned that Lt. William Rees, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Rees was in London awaiting transportation home. Mrs. Miller said. They contacted each other and one day when Lt. Miller came back to his airbase after a mission over Europe, he found Lt. Rees waiting to see him.

The pair had three days together in London after the airfield meeting.

Lt. Miller has been overseas for five months and in the service two years. Lt. Rees has not been home for over two years. He was on one of the big bombers that was shot down on that first Allied air attack on the Ploesti oil fields in Romania. He was captured and spent about a year and a half in a prison camp in Romania from which he was released with other American fliers when Romania deserted Germany as Russian forces overran the country.

BLOODY BATTLE NOW RAGING ON STORMY LEYTE

Break in Weather Brings Resumption of Fighting On Intense Scale

By LEONARD MILLIMAN
(By the Associated Press)

In bitter engagements reported today from either end of the storm-swept Philippines battlefront, 1,000 Japanese were killed in a five-day see-saw battle for "Shoestring Ridge," and American bazookas broke up a tank-led attack by trapped Japanese trying to break through a road block in the Ormoc corridor.

Simultaneously, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced warplanes and PT boats searching Philippine waters from Manila to the southern islands sank eight more enemy ships including a destroyer, a tanker and six small freighters.

Front-line dispatches from Leyte Island said Japanese attacks from strong positions were steadily increasing in vigor in every sector. Clearing weather was expected to bring the heaviest fighting of the Philippines campaign.

Clear indications that fighting may reach a new intensity with a break in the weather came today on the eve of the Pacific war's third anniversary as Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced bazooka firing American infantrymen crushed a tank-supported Japanese drive to break out of a vise at the northern end of Ormoc corridor Sunday night.

Rains still held back full-scale action as U. S. airmen and PT boats sank another destroyer, six small freighters and a tanker in wide sweeps through Philippine waters.

Frontline reports from all sectors reveal solidly entrenched, well-trained, well-equipped large units of Japanese instead of the former straggling of rearguard units.

Associated Press correspondent Al Dopping with the Seventh Division advancing toward Ormoc from the south described some of the bloodiest fighting these veterans of Attu and Kwajalein have ever seen.

One small ridge—Shoestring Hill it is called, because that is all we held at first—was the scene of a five-day battle.

It was seized by the Yanks only after the slopes were littered with more than 1,000 enemy dead.

The Seventh is fighting the Japanese 26th division, seasoned veterans.

Secret Weapons Being Made For Jap War

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(P)—Conquest of the Japanese will cost us $71,000,000,000 a year "after Germany is defeated," Lt. Gen. Brehon Somervell predicted today.

"The war against the Jap alone will be the biggest war this country or this world ever fought before the present war," asserted the commanding general of the Army service forces.

Somervell declared 300,000 more war workers are needed at once on critical programs as he appealed for an "upsurge of production," in a speech prepared for delivery before the National Association of Manufacturers.

Secret weapons are being produced that "must be ready in large quantities for the Pacific pushes," the speaker declared. The devices are "not yet in use in Europe."

For the first time munitions are being used up faster than they are being produced, said Somervell, warning that the full fury of the war in Europe may not even have been reached and "we are certainly not yet full out against Japan."

Somervell acknowledged heavy cost in ammunition and equipment, while reminding that "this nation has committed its troops to fighting the war in one specific fashion—with an overwhelming superiority of materiel... we would rather fire a ton of munitions than lose a single American soldier."

SPRINGFIELD, Dec. 6.—(P)—Jerome A. Nevius, 33, Clark County prosecutor, today joined Sheriff Niles E. Young and three other men under bribery indictments returned by a grand jury investigating reports of gambling in this area. Nevius promptly denied the accusations.

The jury yesterday charged Nevius accepted "large sums of money" and two automobiles from two Dayton men, Joseph Parisi and Ralph Schear, who also were indicted.

Simultaneously, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced warplanes and PT boats searching Philippine waters from Manila to the southern islands sank eight more enemy ships including a destroyer, a tanker and six small freighters.

MORE MONEY ASKED FOR NEW SKY GIANTS

Final Appropriation Bill Is Offered in Congress

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—(P)—The 78th Congress received its final appropriation bill today—a $415,324,712 measure supplementing funds already provided for miscellaneous agencies.

If enacted as recommended by the House appropriations committee it will boost to an estimated $68,000,000 the new funds voted by Congress this year.

Over half the new bill's total, $286,626,582, was earmarked for the Navy, whose high-ranking officers disclosed during closed-door hearings that secret tests are under way on new sky giants that may dwarf in size the big B-29 Superfortresses.

In addition to the new money for the Navy, the committee recommended that the service be allowed to use $52,500,000 of surplus funds now available. Most of the Navy's funds were set aside for the bureau of yards and docks.

Also approved were a number of items, aggregating $17,559,000, for the collection of statistics to be available to government and business for programming and promoting postwar readjustment.

Girl Regaining Sight Lost When Hit by Car

CLEVELAND, Dec. 6.—(P)—Seven-year-old Judy Ann Koch, who lost her sight and nearly her life in a vain effort to rescue a dog from the path of an automobile, found her vision mysteriously returning today.

As the dark-haired girl recognized toys sent from well-wishers over the nation, her parents said physicians had discovered no medical reason for her recovery.

But the parents had their own theory.

"I think," said Mrs. Clyde Koch, "it is because of so many good thoughts and prayers from so many good people."

CONVICTS SEIZE FOUR OFFICIALS

Armed Troops Appear at Federal Penitentiary

ATLANTA, Dec. 6.—(P)—Two Army truck loads of soldiers, armed with rifles, drew up in front of the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary today as prison officials continued efforts to gain control of a segregation building held by 25 long-term convicts.

A lieutenant on one of the trucks asserted the soldiers came to the prison merely for "target practice" and that they visited the prison weekly for that purpose. Army Public Relations Headquarters reported, however, that the Army had not been asked for help and that Fort McPherson had sent no troops to the institution.

A formal statement by the warden said the exact cause of the trouble had not been learned but "some objections have been made to the quartering of German saboteurs and spies in the same building." Then, too, he added, the rebellious convicts are "naturally protesting their own segregation."

Tahiti Becomes Paradise For GIs

Few of Weary Fighting Men Get Spice of Gay Life on Weekends - - - Even If Costly

By VERNE HAUGLAND
HONOLULU, Dec. 6.—(P)—Tahiti, famous and lovely island of South Pacific story and song, has become a real Hollywood-like heaven for a few fortunate GIs.

It's fairly expensive. One soldier spent $425 there during a week end. But the average GI serviceman can get by—from Friday morning until Tuesday afternoon—for $65 or so.

Last January, according to Lt. Gerald Conway, a former St. Paul advertising man who has been having a bit of a rest here after 32 months in the South Pacific, Col. George Pollin, the commanding officer at Bora Bora, began permitting soldiers and sailors who had been on the island for two years to take turns in visiting Paapeete.

Foreign Secretary Says Britain Within Rights in Shaping Governments for Freed Peoples While U. S. Holds to Hands-off Plan—Meanwhile, British Troops Take Hand In Greek Affairs as Violence in Athens Continues

LONDON, Dec. 6.—(P)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden asserted flatly today Britain was within her rights in trying to shape the governments of liberated countries, and thereby split completely with the American declaration of "hands-off" policy in Italy.

Eden stood by the British government's veto of the proposed appointment of Carlo Sforza as Italian foreign minister. Secretary of State Stettinius had announced yesterday the United States did not oppose Sforza and felt the Italians should be allowed to form their own government without outside interference.

Eden's stand—clearly of significance in the reshaping of a post-war Europe—brought divided sentiment in the House.

Cries of "no" met a suggestion by Ivor Thomas, Laborite, that Britain "withdraw gracefully" and admit that "a blunder has been made."

Broader Implications

Just as Stettinius implied his "no-interference" statement was a far broader declaration than the immediate issue of Count Sforza, so Eden apparently applied his words to the future of all liberated Europe.

Eden announced a full-dress debate for Friday on the crisis in Greece, where Britain is using her armed forces, in line with a Churchill declaration, against Left-Wing elements.

The discussion was broadened to include Britain's policy in other liberated countries when Eden was asked whether Britain's maintenance of the present Belgian government in office was "dictated solely by military considerations."

Eden said any action taken by Allied troops in Belgium was carried out under instructions of Gen. Eisenhower and that while Belgium remained a zone of military operations the supreme command must be free to take whatever

RIVER CROSSED IN SIX PLACES IN DAY'S DRIVE

Russians Are Surging Toward Opposite Side of Germany; Advances in Italy

By JAMES M. LONG
(By the Associated Press)

The Third Army battered across the Saar River at six places today, burst into Sarreguemines and drove hard down the last six miles to Saarbrücken, burning little Pittsburgh of the Saarland and the whole key to the rich German coal and iron basin.

Patrols crossed the river at a seventh place, at Merzig, 16 miles northwest of invested Saarbrücken, where Germans still held out in strong knots around concrete advance posts of the Siegfried line.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's assault troops fought into the Siegfried line itself at two places beyond the river in the Saarlautern area.

Tensans of the 90th infantry crossed the Saar early today in assault boats at four new places in a two and a half mile stretch between Merzig and Saarbrücken. They fought in the frowning hills on the east bank of the river at the edge of the Siegfried line in a rain of fire.

Saarbrücken in Danger

Saarbrücken, capital of the Saarland, was in great and increasing peril as shells landed among its thickets of factory chimneys, smoking as they turned out war materiel for Hitler. The Americans were within sight of the city.

At the same time the Third army's right flank and the left of the U. S. Seventh squeezed the Karlsruhe corner in northern Lorraine to a strip 50 miles long by from five to 20 deep.

Troops and armor poured through the Saar bridgehead inside Saarbrücken and through the gap south of that city as the great battle of Western Europe roared into its seventh month.

Balkans and Italy

Russian armored columns ripping into the final defense zone guarding the southeastern German frontier plunged to within 40 miles of Austria past the lower end of Lake Balaton in western Hungary, where Marshal Fedor I. Tolbukhin had massed troops of his third Ukrainian army.

In Italy British and Polish troops are pushing forward in the south. The British 8th Army is driving toward the Gothic Line. The Polish 1st Army is driving toward the Silesian Gate.

FIGHTING IN GREECE

ATHENS, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A British Sherman tank and a platoon of British soldiers seized headquarters of the Left-Wing EAM party by storm today as fighting spread through wide areas of Athens.

The Communist party building on Constitution Square also was taken. Parachute troops forced the main entrance with grenades, and seized 18 armed Communists there.

Fighting with tanks and machineguns broke out after snipers of the ELAS—the Milia of the EAM, national liberation front—fired on a truckload of British troops before dawn, killing one and wounding another.

A Sherman tank was sent to batter in the door of EAM headquarters, and British troops charged the stairs, scattering EAM defenders with half a dozen bursts of fire, and cleaning up floor by floor.

One British soldier was killed by a bullet through the head while searching the building. A dying ELAS soldier lay on the roof. Quantities of grenades, provisions, ammunition and rifles were strewn about the building, but most of the defenders apparently escaped. British troops are establishing control over the center of Athens by degrees, working out in concentric rings. Sniping continued incessantly throughout the city, with occasional bigger thumps from grenades and machineguns.

A British communique issued this morning said:

"In defiance of all orders both from the Greek government and Maj. Gen. R. M. Scobie, ELAS troops continued to advance toward the center of Athens, overwhelming police posts and even firing on British troops on guard duty."

"British and Greek regular forces have now gone into action in support of the civil power."

ELAS reinforcements were reported en route to the city from outlying provinces. The ELAS form the fighting branch of the Left-Wing EAM, whose opposition to the present Greek government flared into a series of disorders Sunday.

No American troops are involved in the Athens fighting. A floating population of between 60 and 100 American servicemen are here, including members of the Transport Command, aircraft personnel and officers attached to the relief organization.

Scobie, British commander of Allied forces in Greece, said it might be necessary to inform British and American authorities in Washington soon that the Port of Piraeus would be unable to handle scheduled relief shipments because of the EAM strike.

BRIBE INDICTMENT FACES PROSECUTOR OF CLARK COUNTY

The indictments stemmed from two damage suits filed several months ago in Common Pleas court here by Mrs. Dorothy Miller and Andy Schaff, both of Dayton who claimed the five men indicted were among owners and operators of the Silver Dollar, described by the plaintiffs as a gambling establishment.

Mrs. Miller asked judgment of $2,850 which she asserted her husband, Andrew, lost at gambling. Schaff sought judgment of $1,075 in a similar claim. Both suits still are pending.

The grand jury in a partial report of its inquiry last November 22 indicted Young and Dewitt on bribery counts and also accused Dewitt of perjury in connection with his testimony before that body. The jury then recessed until yesterday's session, after which it adjourned until December 15.

THE WAR TODAY

—By DEWITT MACKENZIE—

This column has been asked to interpret Britain's intervention in the Greek political crisis to prevent, as Prime Minister Churchill has made clear, any attempt to "impose by violence a Communist dictatorship"—a crisis which is producing fresh bloodshed in ancient Athens as this is written. Well, that's perhaps a thankless but needful task, since this situation strikes me as giving us in miniature a very accurate picture of the whole European politico-social upheaval. An understanding of the position is particularly necessary in view of Washington's announcement yesterday of a "hands off" policy permitting liberated nations to work out their own political salvation along Democratic lines without outside interference.

There is focused in this fiery little Balkan kingdom of Greece, which stands at one of the world's strategic cross-roads, all the elements that are ushering in a new era on the continent. So let's restate those elements as an aid to visualization:

Russia is coming out of the war as the dominant power of Europe, a role long held by Britain. John Bull naturally is increasingly active in trying to salvage what he can of his old prestige. Coincidentally, many continental countries, distraught by two world wars within a generation, are seeking eagerly—almost frenziedly in some cases—for solution of great economic, social and political problems.

These seekers after relief are tending towards the left. In most cases Communism (it isn't always clear whether it's the Moscow brand or a local product) is playing a strong role. This is true in most of the remaining monarchies of the continent, and Greece is an outstanding example.

Now while the spread of Communism certainly can't be abhorrent to Russia, it isn't calculated to help John Bull maintain his place in the sun. This is particularly true as regards the monarchies, for Britain's throne wants company.

When you add all this up it seems to me to provide one cogent reason why John Bull is intervening in Greece, which long has been in his sphere of influence. It's a mighty important point in that sphere, too, for it not only is sentinel of the Balkans but lies almost athwart the Dardanelles, famous waterway between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean. As the signs now read, Russia may soon be sailing through this strait as a great seapower to challenge (peacefully, but still to challenge) Britain's domination of the Mediterranean which perhaps more than any other single factor has maintained England as the gendarme of Europe.

Of course, as Churchill says, conflict between the Greek government and armed guerrillas (the Leftists) makes it impossible for Britain to carry out relief measures in the stricken country. He also promises that the people shall have a free choice of government.

Still, the Greek imbroglio isn't

LOCAL SOLDIER SAVES LIFE BY PLAYING DEAD

Pfc. Denver Detillion Wounded Thrice But Escapes From Germans

How Pfc. Denver Detillion, son of Mrs. William Dawes of South Main Street, escaped capture and possibly death at the hands of the Germans in Luxembourg during a bitter fight there a few weeks ago, is told in a clipping from the Stars and Stripes received by Mrs. Dawes this week.

Recently her son received a bronze star for bravery under fire. He had been wounded once before by shrapnel fire, and sustained three additional wounds while deceiving the Germans about him as he lay among the bodies of his dead comrades and the enemy.

The article, headed "Doughboy lives 12 hours in hell to evade capture," follows:

"How a weaponless soldier played dead in enemy lines for several hours to escape capture was told this week.

"Trapped in a swamp, Pfc. Denver Detillion, Co. G radio operator, from Ohio, feigned death while three German riflemen prodded several bodies next to him to see if the Americans were yet alive. He held his breath for several minutes. One of the Nazis walked near him and kicked someone close by. He heard an outcry of pain and then a stir and his buddy was taken prisoner.

"Without arms (weapons) and lying on the ground prostrate, he was helpless. For 12 hours he remained alone in the same position, not daring to move as he could hear the enemy digging in. He was hit three times by flying shrapnel from his own batteries yet all he could do was gnash his teeth to help deaden the pain. Tired and hungry and cold sweat forming on his forehead, he dared not fall asleep.

"Under cover of darkness he made his escape."

an isolated instance. Britain also is supporting the Bonomi government in Italy, which is having hard sledding against Communist and other Leftist opposition that is against the monarchy. London also has turned thumbs-down on Count Sforza for Italian foreign minister. The count reputedly leans toward the left and is anti-monarchist. Similarly England is supporting the Belgian government.

In all this Moscow has sat very tight. The Washington State Department, however, yesterday came out with its striking declaration that the United States expects the Italian people to develop their government "along democratic lines without influence from outside." That's blunt enough, but more sweeping is the additional statement: "This policy would apply to an even more pronounced degree with regard to governments of the United Nations and their liberated territories." And Greece is a liberated United Nation.

GRANGE MARKS 11th ANNIVERSARY AT CELEBRATION

Joint Installation of Officers Proposed at Good Hope Grange Meeting

Good Hope Grange celebrated its 11th anniversary to the day Tuesday night. The Grange was organized December 5, 1933, and as part of the lecture hour E. N. Sollars, secretary, read the minutes of the first meeting.

R. B. McCoy, treasurer now, was treasurer at the organization of the Grange and is the only officer who still is functioning of the original group.

A joint installation of officers was proposed by County Deputy Loren Hynes where all six county granges would install their officers simultaneously. He also announced the Pomona Grange meeting Thursday night and the State Grange session next week.

A review of the organization's activities throughout the year also was a feature of the program. Mrs. Loren Johnson read "Now Is The Time" and "The Need." Mrs. Wayne Finley read Virginia's letter to the New York Sun, classic query as to the existence of Santa Claus.

After the lecture hour, jello, cookies and coffee were served at a Christmassy table. Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Craig, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Hoppes, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Johnson, Miss Avonelle Beekman and Mrs. Eloise Melson.

To Reform Germans

In discussion concerning the future of Germany, Americans generally agree that the first step is a program of re-education of the people. But as to ways and means of doing that there is disagreement. Meanwhile, as a columnist points out, we are overlooking an excellent opportunity to begin now, with the thousands of prisoners interned in this country. According to Henry Cassidy, writing in the Atlantic Monthly, the Russians have been more constructive.

There, as here, the strong Nazis rose quickly to leadership among the prisoners. And as they rose, the Russians quietly isolated them, one by one. With their removal, the attitude of the rank and file changed gradually for the better. Aided by an intelligent propaganda program, the Russians have now developed a group, which may number 100,000, of equally strong anti-Nazis who are eager to build a new and peaceful Germany.

Certainly there is no reason why that could not be done here. We have many influential democratic German refugees in this country who would be glad to assist. The Geneva convention does not specifically ban propaganda among prisoners of war, and there seems to be no violation of its spirit in sensible organization and honest teaching.

Faithfulness

The dog in general needs no eulogy. It is well known that he is man's closest and best friend among the animals. But occasionally something occurs that makes a man more poignantly aware of how fine a dog can be.

Such an example occurred the other day in New Orleans. A handsome little dog, its name and breed not given, somehow lost its master at a busy street intersection. Either the dog had been well trained, or else it naturally possessed the intelligence of a mature human being, plus perfect loyalty. It stood by the changing lights, and with every change it rose on its hind feet and peered into passing cars, so far as it could, to see if its master was there. Evidently it was used to cars. For two days and nights it kept up that vigil. Then the SPCA came to help, and persuaded the dog to eat a little food.

Thousands of people, perhaps millions, would like to know the end of that story.

Bonds and Inflation

The current lag in the purchase of E-Bonds by individuals is a matter of concern to more than those local chairmen worried about making their district quotas. It is, or should be, of immediate concern to everyone.

Much has been made of the fact that the preceding loans have gone over the top, but not enough of the equally important fact that this has been made possible not by individual purchasers of the $25 to $100 bonds, but by large organizations and financial institutions. This means that too

Let There Be Light

It is not exactly a new idea, but one which it seems necessary to emphasize especially nowadays, that one of the main things the world needs is more news. In spite of the immense gains made in facilities for transmitting foreign information, it seems unusually hard to gather, hard to get past the censor, and hard to get into the newspapers for distribution.

This difficulty, it should be added, is far worse abroad than it is here at home. Walter Lippman, in a recent column, spoke especially of the "blackout of news from the United States." The British seem to get very little of our important news, and the French practically none at all. Even our diplomatic representatives abroad, says Mr. Lippman, seem marooned as far as news is concerned. There is almost a blackout of factual information.

Lack of news means mental darkness. The present job is not merely to win the war, but even more, perhaps, to let in the light.

The Weaker Sex

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

"WOMEN AND MEN" is the name of a new book by Amram Scheinfeld (published by Harcourt, Brace and Company, New York). It reviews in a completely scientific spirit such questions as whether women are superior to men or vice versa, why men have dominated women, just how different boys and girls are and such like disputatious subjects. It goes without saying that if you happen to be either a man or a woman it is interesting.

"No fact about you is more important than your sex," is the way it starts out. Most of us have probably wondered what kind of people we would have been if we had been of the opposite sex.

Women live longer than men. A white infant at birth in 1942 could look forward to 68 years if a woman, 63 years if a man.

Women More Moral
Women are more moral than men. At least in a one year period 60,000 men were sent to Federal or State prisons or reformatories, and 2,600 women. In 1940-1941, 14,000 men committed suicide, 4,400 women.

As to comparative intelligence, you have to name the sphere of operation.

In clerical work of any kind women are far and away superior to men. Among a group of high school freshmen 50 per cent of the girls achieved scores of high rating, achieved by 15 per cent of the boys. In general on such tests the girls do 10 to 30 per cent better than the boys.

On mechanical comprehension, however, the boys and men far outshine the women. Shown the picture of a machine and asked to explain it 70 per cent of the men do so correctly in a given time and 33 per cent of the women.

Other Comparisons
There are practically no women comic strip artists, gag writers, radio announcers or editorial writers.

"Women rarely get the hang of mass comedy technique. Their ideas lack punch and originality. Their drawings lack briskness, dash and animation."

Women do not like to work for women bosses.

Women competing with men at heavy jobs:
The strength of the average woman is little more than half that of the average man.

Women are worse automobile drivers than men. This is fact not theory.

A woman will stay put longer than a man on the average. For instance—you tell a woman "stand there in that position" and she does it longer than a man. This, however, I think, is true only if she knows it is a contest. You tell a woman to stand there until I come back and don't remember to add that there's a bet up on it, and only the Lord in his infinite mercy can tell what she will do.

Some Taboos Overcome

Woman in her demands for equality with man has overcome many taboos. Dr. Scheinfeld has described a number of these as they have existed and still obtain in primitive tribes. She still, even in the most civilized communities faces certain taboos that are partly inherent and logical and inevitable. Some of these, as judged by the standard of 50 years ago have been disproved, for instance, the idea that she must of necessity absent herself from work a certain period of each monthly cycle. Dr. Scheinfeld says this is mostly psychological.

The inherent duties of child bearing are less easily overcome. The argument that among primitive tribes the woman work up to the time of child bearing and then take an hour or so out and go back to work is simply untrue: the primitive mother has on the average a harder time than the woman of civilization. The fact remains and is a fact that if the race is to go on woman must take some time out and her worldly career is conditioned by that.

THANKSGIVING TO CHRISTMAS

TODAY—HEBREWS 11

A portion of this moving tribute to the Faith that made men and women great—the Faith that comes through fellowship with God. Their conviction is a tremendous challenge to anyone who wishes to be more than a parasite in the world.

"Now Faith is assurance of things hoped for, a conviction of things not seen. For therein the elders had witness borne to them. By Faith we understand that the worlds have been framed by the word of God, so that what is seen hath not been made out of things which appear. By Faith, Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain."

By Faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death. By Faith Noah, being warned of God concerning things not seen as yet, moved with Godly fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house.

"By Faith Abraham, being tried, offered up Isaac. By Faith Moses, when he was grown up, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; choosing rather to share ill treatment with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasure of sin for a season."

CHAPTER FORTY-FIVE

"What of the Frederic Miller checks?" queried Nicky.
There was another silence. Then Alexia said in a kind of stifled way, "All right. But if you say a word..."
"You took them out of his desk yourself, didn't you?"
"Nicky, is this a guess or do you know?"
"I know enough. I think I know the whole story."

"You don't," protested Alexia. "You can't possibly. But if you'll keep still..."
"I knew you'd see the light. It's a deal: Dollar for dollar. Fifty-fifty. It's a good thing that you are a sensible girl..."

"Will you go?" demanded Alexia in a voice that trembled with rage.
"Right," said Nicky and someone tiptoed from the house.

So Nicky knew, or pretended to know, the "whole story." Whatever it was, it was so incriminating that Alexia would promise half her legacy to silence him.
After a long silence in the cottage, I moved, very cautiously, so I could see through the little crack between curtain and window casing. Then I wished I hadn't looked.

For Nicky stood in the doorway, was looking slowly around the study, and he held the long carving knife in one hand.
Only it wasn't Nicky!
I looked closer, scrutinizing. It was Alexia in Nicky's clothes—his checked jacket, brown slacks, maroon scarf. It must be Alexia; Nicky had gone.

All at once I understood many things. Mainly, Nugent's suggestion was right: Alexia could and obviously had worn Nicky's clothes whenever it was convenient to do so. But there was something else—something terribly important. Oh, yes. Is Drue here? Nicky had asked.

If Drue were in that gloomy silent cottage she was upstairs where I hadn't looked. Perhaps they had her locked up. Just then I was watching Alexia, and afraid for fear she would feel my eyes upon her. But she didn't, for she was looking at the books I had left on the desk. No; that was wrong. She was actually looking at the telephone.

Suddenly Alexia took one swift step to the telephone, and slashed through its wire with the knife. Then she glanced around the study again and I shut my eyes to keep from attracting her gaze. When I opened them an instant later, she was gone.

I crept out from behind the draperies. Then it flashed through my mind that nobody would live in that country, without a revolver, and my hand went out to the desk drawer, opened it cautiously, and there was actually a revolver lying on top of some papers.

The hall was in blackness as I groped with my free hand for the stairs. . . . Suddenly my hand encountered hair.
Human hair!

I drew back quickly. I would have fired the revolver if I had not been scared stiff.

Then I realized that the hair I touched was a braid. It was Anna's, and she was alive.
In fact, Anna was shrinking over the banisters, away from me. She was petrified with fright, and I got my hand over her mouth before she even whimpered. I whispered sternly, "Anna, it's me—the nurse, Miss Keate..."

"Go—woo—woo—" she moaned. I held my hand harder over her teeth, and was horrified to realize that she was heaving wildly up and down in an effort either to scream or sob; so I dragged her nearer and put my mouth where I thought her ear ought to be.

"Anna, listen! It's Nurse Keate. I'm not going to hurt you."

She pulled away from me, sucked in a great gulp of air while I sought desperately for her mouth in the darkness, and then she whispered, "Turn me over to the police. It's all my fault."

I said between my teeth, "Is Miss Cable here?"
"Oh, yes, yes. She's not hurt, she's upstairs, in a bedroom."

"You've got to go for the police! Quick! Out the back door!"

"Police?"
"They won't hurt you. Be quiet. Hurry!"

"No, no! I lied to them! I said I didn't telephone the night Mr. Brent was killed. But I did. I knew it was murder. I was afraid something terrible would happen. And it did."

"You telephoned the police?"

"Yes, yes. Oh, Nurse, I've been so wicked. I picked up the vase. I had to; I was made to do it; I didn't want to."

"Who made you pick up the broken vase? Why did you know it was murder?" Anna . . .
But I was too vehement. I had her by the shoulders and I clutched too hard. I only frightened her into a gibbering, quaking, sobbing jelly. I couldn't get another sensible or coherent two words out of her.

And Drue was alone, with Alexia somewhere in the house. So finally I showed the revolver against Anna's neck where she could feel the cold steel. "Go out the back door," I ordered. "Go through the kitchen. Don't make a sound. And if you don't bring the police back here as soon as you can I'll shoot you!"

I must have impressed her; something penetrated the fog of terror around her. "I will—oh, I will—I'll do it all my fault. But don't shoot."

She quavered out of the darkness. Anna groped her way around me and I could hear the soft patter of her feet for a few steps . . .

I couldn't hear anything at all from upstairs or from the front of the house, but presently I did hear the soft opening and closing of a door nearby and I was reasonably sure it was Anna. But I wasn't at all sure she would go for the police.

I took a harder grip on the revolver and started up the narrow flight of stairs. I came to a landing and poked my head cautiously around the corner to look along a narrow hall, going toward the front of the house, with doors opening from it.

I didn't know where Drue was, so I must try the rooms.
Drue was in the first bedroom I entered. I didn't see her at first; she had heard or sensed my approach and had shrunk back behind the door. As I turned she caught a glimpse of me. "Sarah . . ."

"Sh—sh—" I closed the door softly. Her face was a white oval in the dusk; her hands gripped my arms as if she would never let me go. "Sarah," she whispered.

"Be still. Alexia's here. Nicky was here, but I think he's gone. Drue, are you all right? Did they hurt—"

"No, no. Only I couldn't do anything. She wouldn't let me . . ."

"She?"

"Anna. She's gone now to fix us something to eat. A few minutes ago. I thought I heard Nicky's voice."

"You told I was sure she was all right; and relief surged along my nerves. I couldn't think of anything except to get Drue out of there. And the notes about digitalis into the hands of the police. And Anna's words and Alexia's into their ears!"

I wasn't really afraid of Alexia; not with Drue, to say nothing of the revolver, to back me up. Neither Drue nor myself was exactly frail and, moreover, as nurses we'd had a certain amount of training in self-defense.

Drue was still clinging to me. "Craig . . ." she whispered. "Is he—"

"Nearly crazy," I said while listening for Alexia. "He—listen, Drue, when you left the Brent house (I mean when you were married to Craig and he was in Washington) did Nicky go with you?"

"Why, yes. He drove me to the station. Then he took the same train to New York; he said he had some business in town. Why?"

So that settled that. I thought rather grimly. Then I said wearily, "Tell Craig that."

"Tell Craig? But Nicky—that was nothing!"

"Sh—sh—" I said quickly, certain I heard some motion outside, but the door did not open and there was no further sound. After a moment I whispered, "Anna went for the police. At least, I sent her to get them."

"Anna?" Drue shuddered. I said, "She made you come here. What did she tell you?"

"Anna told me she knew something. Last night she came to me—"

"I know. The guard told us."

"She was crazy with fear. Really, Sarah, she was afraid of everything. She promised to tell me what she knew if I'd help her get away from the house. She was afraid to talk there, in the house. Terrified."

"So you came here?"
"In the night, Anna said this house was empty and no one would look for us here. I wasn't afraid, not at first."

Exotic Singapore, Mecca for Superforts

By JEAN MEEGAN

In the early days of the war it seemed as though the Allies couldn't get along without Singapore. It was the one spot in that part of the world able to harbor the entire British fleet, the one really powerful base not only for defense of Pacific possessions but for strong offensive action.

Two months after Pearl Harbor, this notion of Singapore's indispensability had to be given up. Singapore was lost. For nearly two and a half years the city has been silent. Now, with the war coming nearer again, more of it may be heard. It is hardly likely that the B-29's will permit the enemy to use the base for interference with Allied operations on either side.

Until Thomas Stamford Raffles bought (Manhattan style) the malaria-rotted, hibiscus-rooted island for $67,500 from the princes of Johore in 1819, Singapore was a swamp inhabited by a handful of fishermen.

A Far East Chicago

During the years of British development there were 7,000 English there, and a population of Chinese who ranged from millionaires to cooks and coolies; Indian show owners; and Malay gardeners and chauffeurs.

Singapore was more metropolitan than colonial. It was a parcel of big business, high finance, capital, government, and white granite buildings dropped on an oriental island. A traveler once said Raffles Square, the center of the business section, looked like Chicago—except for the rickshaws in the streets and the orange-sailed junks idling in Singapore River, which runs through the city.

Club life was highly developed along English lines; the weather wasn't as bad as New York City's on certain summer days. The tempo was tropical until war arrived and then was accelerated to the tempo of ordinary American business life in peace time; the food was about like the food in California.

Above all, Singapore was a naval base. The 80 million dollars, which went into the base might have been warranted if even one naval battle was fought there, but none was. The Japanese didn't attack from the sea.

All For One

An interesting footnote to the battle of Singapore is the record of the blood bank, where the white gave blood to yellow and the brown Malay bared his arm for the red reservoir which gives no clue of race.

The personnel of the police department also furnishes evidence that four races worked together. Europeans held down the executive jobs; the detectives were all Chinese; Indian Sikhs with tall silver and blue turbans acted as traffic officers; the rest of the forces was Malayan.

First Baptist Church Scene Of Class Meet

The Brotherhood and Victoria classes of the First Baptist Church held their annual Christmas party and business meeting Tuesday evening at the Baptist home. A good representation of the classes was present and the devotional period was in charge of Mrs. John Case who read the story of Christmas from the scriptures, followed by another by VanDyke entitled "Keeping Christmas." This was a very practical and deeply spiritual message and was a splendid preparation for a season of prayer in which a goodly number from each class took part.

The classes then separated and went into a brief business session which was followed by refreshments enjoyed by all. An interesting feature of the evening was the exchange of gifts; numbers were distributed to each of the members and as these were called, by Mrs. Milo Smith, the gift with a similar number was distributed; this proved to be a very novel and interesting feature as the men sometimes received a feminine gift.

The classes then joined in singing the Christmas carols led by Mr. Laris E. Hard with Mrs. Walter McLean at the piano. This period was closed with prayer by the pastor, the Rev. H. B. Twining. The host and hostesses were the officers and teachers of the classes, Mr. and Mrs. Perl Baughn, Mrs. Milo Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Laris Hard and W. H. Wilson.

Patty Bennett Guest of Honor At Gay Party

Celebrating the eighth birthday of Patty Ann Bennett, a gala birthday party was held at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Frank Saunders, with Patty's mother, Mrs. Thomas Bennett as hostess for the pleasurable affair.

Various contests and games were enjoyed following the regular session of school, prizes being won by Ann Deer, Annette Cline, Ruth Alice Sexton, Joan Fenner, Carol Kay Ellis and Donna Jean Yerian. Additional guests for the party were Joan Anderson, Portia Brownell, Beverly Baer, Patty Litz, Collen Hiltz, Carolyn Christie and Patty Shoop.

A pink and white color scheme was artistically carried out by the hostess when refreshments were served, the table being centered with a beautifully iced cake lighted by small pink candles. "Patty" was inscribed in the icing in honor of the young guest of honor. At each guest's place were small baskets filled with assorted candies, as favors.

Preceding the serving, Patty Ann opened her many lovely gifts and made sweet response. In the serving Mrs. Bennett was assisted by Mrs. Sanders and Mrs. Floyd Yerian.

Seventeen members heard the announcement that the annual Christmas party will be held December 22 at the home of Mrs. Frank Thompson at seven o'clock.

Refreshments served at the close of the meeting, brought the affair to a close.

Two Papers Are Heard Tuesday At Browning

The Browning Club met Tuesday evening in the clubroom at the Washington Hotel and a brief business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. A. B. Murray. Mrs. Jess Feagans, club secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting and communications.

The program of the evening was given by members from the art and history department with the quotation, "Fine art is that in which the hand, the head and the heart go together"—Ruskin, used as the theme for the first paper, "Arts and Handicrafts of Canada."

Mrs. Bess Briggs who gave the interesting paper, traced the development of the arts and crafts of Canada to the present time, describing the pottery, particularly and its designs, the wood carvings and paintings. Mrs. Briggs said painting is the youngest of all arts in Canada.

mentioning the work of some of the best known artists.

The musical portion of the program was contributed by Miss Cecil Turton, a club member and Miss Mary E. Wood, a guest. Greatly enjoyed were Miss Turton's two vocal numbers, "In An Old-Fashioned Town" and "Oh, What A Beautiful Morning." She was accompanied by Miss Wood.

The second paper was an exceptionally interesting and informative one on "Tantalum and Diasone" by Miss Dorothea Gaut. Miss Gaut described tantalum as the "magic metal" invaluable now in the exacting task of the work effort. Diasone, one of the life-saving sulphur family drugs, gives hope of a step forward in the control of tuberculosis.

Following the program, a profitable discussion period was led by Mrs. Faye J. Mayo, program chairman.

Blue Lions Break Even With Fairfield

A fast start and a whirlwind finish may give some insight into the capabilities of the Blue Lions basketball team, but they were not enough to beat the Fairfield cagers from Leesburg.

The Lions took an early lead in their second game of the season and the first on their home floor Tuesday night and held the Fairfielders well in check until the third period when the visitors opened up with a flurry of baskets that put them out in front to stay.

The alert Fairfielders took the decision 38 to 32, largely because they were on their toes.

Time and again the visitors flashed through to intercept the ball and break up the Lion strategy.

Taking a tip from their opponents, the Lions put on a spurt in the first part of the last period that had the crowd howling with hope. They cut the Fairfield lead in half but never really threatened. At one time the visitors' advantage was whittled to 4 points.

Whitmore, with six field goals, set the offensive pace for the Lions as he racked up his shots from close under the basket, most of them taken off the backboard. Brandenburg, second in the Lion scoring column, loomed in three from the floor.

The Fairfield boys spread the scoring among four players. Because of close guarding, they took the shooting from medium distances—and connected.

The gym was packed, with many of the spectators from the Leesburg community shouting encouragement for the Fairfield boys.

The Lion reserves squeezed out

HIGHEST GRID HONOR GIVEN HORVATH—THREE BUCKS ON ALL-AMERICA

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Leslie Horvath today holds the Henisman Memorial Trophy, awarded annually by the Downtown Athletic Club to the nation's outstanding football player, but the Ohio State University backfield ace insisted most of the credit belongs to his teammates.

"This is the proudest moment of my life," said Horvath as he accepted the trophy last night from Club President Wilfred Wottrich at a banquet here. "Whatever success Ohio State and I have had this year has been due entirely to my teammates and the coaching staff," Horvath added.

The Parma, Ohio, youth was selected as the trophy recipient in a club poll of 700 newspapermen and broadcasters.

"A true all-American, on the field and off," was the way Acting Coach Carroll Widdoes described Horvath who sparked the Bucks to an undefeated season and the Big Ten championship in the absence of Coach Paul Brown, now in the navy.

Horvath, End Jack Dugger and Tackle Bill Willis of Ohio State also won berths on the all-American team selected by sporting news.

No Changes in Standing In City Women's Bowling

The Farmerettes, Lloyd's Market girls and the Fayette Fruit Market girls continued their nip and tuck race in the upper reaches of the Women's City League after each held its slight advantage in that order in the Tuesday night bowling on the Main Street alleys.

The Farmerettes took a two-out-of-three decision from the Record-Herald News girls, winning the first two before they slumped and lost the last one when the News girls rolled their best score.

The Marketettes lost the opener to the BPW girls, but came back to take the last two and held to second place by a slender margin.

-Spying- On Sports By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—(AP)—During the Big Ten meeting this week-end, a group of mid-western college baseball coaches will get together to plan a national organization in their trade.

And it's about time. In most colleges baseball has slipped to minor sports status and it will take a lot of pushing from the men who would be the most interested to get it back. Bank Leiber, former Giant outfielder, operates a poultry ranch at Tucson, Arizona. He has 15,000 chickens—not counting the coeds at the nearby University of Arizona.

Catching Up

During a recent dinner given by the Sugar Bowl folks in New Orleans, Mrs. Bill Alexander, wife of the Georgia Tech coach, and "Little Monk" Simons of Tulane were talking football. Tech had just walloped Tulane and Simons commended at length on Coach Alex's habit of winning ball games. "Alex has taken a lot of lickings, Monk," Mrs. Alexander consoled, "and you must remember you're not as old as Alex is." "No," Monk admitted, "but by golly, I'm aging fast."

Sports Before Your Eyes

In his latest N. B. A. news letter, addressed to Col. Heinie Miller in Hawaii, Prexy Abe Greene proposes that boxing's service athletic fund should be continued after the war as a means of rehabilitating worn-out boxers.

Judging by the number of worn-out fighters who are appearing these days, a lot of them will need help in a few years. The Women's International Bowling Congress was less than $21,000 short of having enough to buy its second ambulance plane for the army, as of Nov. 18. Curly Byrd, U. of Maryland Prexy, is reported looking on the west coast for a new football coach.

YANKS SMASH AT GATE TO SAAR BASIN THROUGH SIX NEW BRIDGEHEADS

troops smashed across the Lamone River southwest of Faenza, Bologna-Rimini Road stronghold of the Germans, and established a bridgehead. Other British units cleared isolated enemy pockets in captured Ravenna on the Adriatic coast.

Nazi Losses Heavy

Six months after the Allied invasion of western Europe seven Allied armies were estimated to be inflicting up to 9,000 permanent casualties a day on the Germans, or at the rate of five divisions a week. Five of the Allied armies already are on German soil, and the other two in the south are battering at the Rhine River barrier.

The war of attrition probably was bringing severe losses to the Allies. American losses in the present fighting on German soil probably will exceed anything known in Normandy or in the war history of western Europe.

On the central sector the Third army had a solid 40-mile front inside Germany from a point east of Luxembourg's boundary to southwest of shell and bomb torn Saarbrücken, capital of the industrial Saar basin. With the doughboys six miles away, U. S. dive bombers yesterday smashed heavily at the city's factory districts.

New Saar Crossings

The Third's new bridgeheads over the Saar were northwest of the original one at Saarlautern, south of which the Americans wheeled against Sarreguemines and Saarbrücken. South of Saarlautern Third army infantry crossed the Saar and drove a mile beyond into Siegfried line outposts. Heavy fighting continued inside Saarlautern during the day.

To the north U. S. First army troops on the right flank of the front beyond Aachen captured Bersteln, two miles southeast of Hürtgen. On their left, a lull hung over the American Ninth army's Roer River front.

In the south, U. S. Seventh army units repulsed two counter-attacks eight miles northwest of Haguenau, and on the lower end of the Western Front the French First army gained several miles in the Vosges Mountains toward Munster and Colmar.

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Grain futures markets settled back today after two days of bullish trading and losses ranged from minor fractions to more than a cent a bushel. December corn was independently traded. The volume of the trade was off sharply, and brokers said the downturn indicated all markets had been weakened by extensive short covering yesterday and Monday. Some of the selling in shorts were taking profits.

Short covering and purchases by one of the leading elevator companies strengthened the nearby corn delivery. The deferred contracts were under pressure and lost additional fractions near the close.

Rye suffered from a lull in buying interest. Local traders turned sellers late in the session, encouraged by the setback in corn.

A sharply limited demand was the feature of the wheat trade. The volume was small and offerings were not heavy.

At the close wheat was 1/4 to 1 cent lower than yesterday's finish. December, $1.64 1/2; May $1.14 1/2; July $1.14 1/2. Corn was 1/2 higher to 1/2 lower, December $1.13 1/2. Oats were off 1/4 to 1/2, December $1.14 1/2. Barley was off 1/4 to 1/2, December $1.12 1/2.

Good Hope Cagers Get Even Break With Greenfield

Good Hope's basketballers broke even with the boys from Greenfield Tuesday night when a team made up mostly of freshmen edged the McClain High School freshmen in the curtain raiser, 15 to 12, before the varsity crew went down to a 37 to 31 defeat at the hands of the fast Greenfield reserves.

The Greenfielders took the lead from the Good Hope varsity at the start and were never headed in the nip and tuck game in which the Good Hope boys always managed to keep within striking distance but could not quite close the gap.

Ten Good Hope boys—six freshmen and four sophomores—got in the preliminary game. Noon and Bakenheimer set the pace for the offense ably supported by the White twins, Garringer and Moorehead.

The API Reds will have Skeeter Mann back in the lineup for their program closer with a team from Wilmington. Mann has been out for some time with a leg injury.
